The Old Style.

As the Copperhead Democracy got their political training in the school of the Southern "chivalry," they cannot get beyond the idea that the country is to be ruled by bluster and threats. "Submit to us, or we'll split you," is the doctrine still in vogue among them. These so called chivalry who taught this doctrine and acted upon it until it finally brought them into the profoundest depths of grief, have been pretty effectually cured of that species of nonsense, but their pupils at the North, who haven't judgment enough to profit by the lessons of experience, continue to rant and rave and threaten in the ferocious style which was taught them by their old political masters. The impeachment of Johnson is an occasion which gives a new impulse to this bombast and rodomontade, and on all sides we hear that the "peace Democracy" are now determined on war. Eastern dispatches make mention of some of their ministerial proceedings, and their spokesmen in our midst are talking almost as threateningly as they did in the days when they denounced the "Federal myrmidons" who were engaged in the work of compelling rebels to obey the laws, and when they predicted slaughter and ruin at home if the war against the South were not stopped at once. The bluster of Woodward, a Democratic member of the House of Repres tatives, is quite like that which was heard from Southern members before the war, and from Copperhead members while the war was in prog ss. Woodward would have Johnson refuse to ans wer to the articles of impeachment, and call on the army and navy to sustain him in putting down the impeachers. He would have him deny the jurisdiction of Congress, and let that body proceed with impeachment if they dared. Others among Johnson's friends are harping on his and their favorite doctrine that Congress is a fragmentary body, and are advising him to resist it. It may be that these blatant swaggerers believe that Johnson might accomplish his purpose by intimidation; but if such is their belief, it evinces a remarkable degree of obtuseness and folly. They might as well give up the idea that their political opponents are a set of cowards when high words will fill with agued fear. The time is forever gone when the country could be controlled by such agencies. It is still fresh in the remembrance of all loyal men how war and bloodshed and ruin were predicted throughout the North in case an attempt were made to quell with arms the supremacy of the National Government. It is yet by no means forgotten how, at every successive step that was taken during the war, the party of the Union was met by threats of open resistance, and how furious were the predictions that the country was on the eve of a revolution; the consequences of which were too frightful to contemplate. Copperhead orators were afraid of presenting these gloomy pictures. And the sons of those who are now attempting to imitate the fearful predictions and direful threats of their sires in those times, is merely the ridiculous parody of those who, long accustomed to swagger, cannot forget their old habit. Did not ex-President Pierce declare early in 1861 that if the demands of the South were not acceded to, we should have war at home? That the fighting would not be in the South, but within our own borders, in our own streets and between our own citizens? Did not Pendleton declare in Congress that unless the war were abandoned and the seceding States allowed to depart in peace, there would be a bloody uprising in the North, bringing the horrors of internecine war to every door and fire side? And did not the Copperhead press constantly teem with the most inflammatory articles to the same purpose? Yet they still rely on this tawdry declamation and cheap bombast to frighten their opponents; threaten revolution, and predict no end of horrible things unless they are allowed to have their way. Heretofore the Union party has gone straight forward in its work, and such will be its course hereafter. It does not seek any disturbance, but it will shrink from no responsibility. And if an unworthy President shall be removed from office, of which there is now every probability, those who are threatening such terrible things will quietly subside, leaving no sign of the "total" they are now talking of any g a r. ification of their own ridiculous folly.

The rumor mentioned in the dispatches to day that the delay of the House in reporting articles of impeachment, was occasioned by the impression that the Senate would not convict Johnson on the charge of violating the Tenure of Office Act, is evidently of a kind with many of the conjectural announcements made by reporters and correspondents. On the 22d ult, when the Senate was notified of the removal of Stanton, it passed a r solution declaring that the President had no authority to order the removal, and charging him with having violated the Constitution and laws of the United States. This indicates the temper of the Senate in the matter

The only obstacle to peace and harmony for the last two years had been Andrew Johnson. Without his treachery, his factious opposition, and his continued efforts to thwart the expressed will of the people, reconstruction would long ago have been finished and the country restored to perfect tranquility. His removal from office now would tranquilize the country, restore public confidence, settle reconstruction, strengthen the Union party, and be of advantage in every way. He has put himself in a position which renders impeachment clearly necessary and the sooner he is out of the way the better

THE DEMOCRACY MOVING.—We notice that placards are issued over the signature of J A. Chapman, President Democratic Club, requesting the Democracy to assemble "en masse" at Oro Fino Hall to-night. The placards announce that "Hon J. S. Smith, W W Page, Esq., A J Cain Esq., and others will address the people." It is a noticeable fact that the President of the club is not now solicitous to know whether his brethren bear the "Slogan", from which it is inferred that the "Slogan" may have just now a cracked voice. Slogans are uncertain.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN]

DATES TO FEBRUARY 27.

Congressional

Chicago, Feb 26.—The Senate yesterday considered the supplemental reconstruction bill, allowing a majority of the votes cast to decide the elections

Buckalew's amendment requiring ten days residence in the District before the election was adopted

Williams offered an amendment allowing an affidavit or other satisfactory evidence to establish the voting right Adopted

Sherman offered an additional section which was adopted providing that the Convention may provide for the election of Members of Congress and all elective officers provided for by the Constitution at the same time and the election for the ratification of the Constitution and that the same officers who make the return of the votes on ratification shall also certify the votes cast for Members of Congress

Edmunds moved an amendment requiring that all elections provided for shall take place on the same day in every State Adopted

After other amendments offered and rejected the bill passed

The select Senate committee on Impeachment is as follows Howard, of Michigan; Trumbull of Illinois; Fessenden, of New York, Edmunds of Vermont Morton of Indiana, Pomeroy, of Kansas, and Johnson, of Maryland

WASHINGTON, Feb 26.—In the senate the Chairman submitted a communication from the Grand Lodge of Indiana Union of Cincinnati, in regard to the treatment of Emigrants on ship board Referred to the committee on Commerce

Yates presented a memorial of citizens of Utah praying for the erection of that Territory and Wyoming into a State and the annexation of Idaho thereto Referred to the committee on Territories

Patterson presented the petition of 4 000 citizens of Louisiana, setting forth their grievances and hardships Referred to the Judiciary Committee

Stevens from Committee on Judiciary reported a bill for the surrender of persons convicted of certain crimes with aliens The bill does not apply to persons convicted of political offences, and was introduced to meet the case of countries with whom we have no extradition treaties

Sherman offered an amendment to provide that the principles of extradition treaties be applied to those countries

After further discussion the bill was recommitted

Howard, from Select Committee to whom was referred the message of the House on the subject of impeachment, reported the following resolution

WHEREAS, The House of Representatives, on the 25th day of the present month, by two of their members, Stevens and Boutwell, at the bar of the Senate, impeached Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, of high crimes and misdemeanors in office informs the Senate that the House of Representatives will, in due time exhibit particular articles of impeachment against him, and make good the same, and likewise demand that the Senate make order for the appearance of said Andrew Johnson, therefore,

Resolved, That the Senate will take the proper order thereon, of which due notice will be given to the House of Representatives The Committee also recommend that the Secretary of the Senate be directed to notify the House of Representatives of the passage of the resolution

The resolution was adopted without dissent, and the order was made accordingly

On motion of Saulsbury, the Senate took up the Supplemental Reconstruction bill, upon which Saulsbury addressed the Senate

Trumbull, from the Judiciary Committee, reported a bill defining the jurisdiction of the United States Courts in certain cases, with amendments striking out the clause dismissing cases now pending in the Supreme Court, which have grown out of the execution of the Reconstruction acts, and changing various acts which authorize appeal in such cases to the Supreme Court to change their suspension, also providing that no law hitherto passed extending the judicial system over the ten rebel States shall be construed to recognize any State government as existing therein until Senators and Representatives from such States shall be admitted, or Congress shall recognize State governments as valid

In the House, Williams presented a petition of citizens of Pennsylvania, complaining of the burden of taxation and praying for a reduction of Government expenses Referred to the Committee on Ways and Means

The Senate amendment to the House bill defining the time for the completion of the Dubuque & Sioux City railroad were concurred in A large number of bills were reported by the Committee on Invalid Pensions, and acted upon by the House

Stevens asked to have the Senate amendments to the Supplemental Reconstruction bill taken from the Speaker's table that it might now be concurred in and a committee of conference appointed

Holman objected, and the House went into Committee of the Whole on the bill making a partial appropriation for expenses of the Indian Department Pending the discussion, the Committee rose and the House received a Senate message relative to their action on impeachment

The Committee, on motion, substituted the supplementary Reconstruction bill, which was concurred in Ayes, 95; noes, 32 The bill now goes to the President

The House went into the Committee of the Whole on the Indian appropriation bill Again the bill was laid aside and will be reported back to the House The committee then took up the bill making appropriations for sundry civil expenses After a discussion relative to revenue cutters upon the lakes, the committee arose and the House adjourned

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—In the Senate, Patterson presented a petition from army officers against the passage of Wilson's bill relative to the commutation of pay

The Senate considered the bill permitting the Pacific Railroad to occupy a portion of Goat Island in San Francisco harbor, for a depot, and to construct a railroad thence for Stockton After considerable debate it was laid over

Thayer introduced a bill to dissolve the Indian Commission Referred.

Sherman, from the Committee on Finance, reports an amendment to the bill funding the national debt, and explained its provisions at some length

Sherman proposes a new issuing of bonds bearing five per cent interest. His speech was listened to attentive ly. He said it would be a plain of palpable violation of the guarantees given by the Government to redeem the five twenties in any other currency but that in which they were bought, and he was satisfied the safest and best plan was to redeem these bonds after five years in the same money in circulation at the time they were issued

In the House Boutwell, from the Committee to report articles of impeachment, offered a resolution permitting the Committee to report in print Adopted

Moorehead, from the Committee on Ways and Means, reported back Spaulding's bill declaring the meaning of the internal revenue tax on railroad chairs and spikes to be a specific tax of five dollars per ton

The Speaker presented several communications, including resolutions from the South Carolina Convention, asking an appropriation of a million dollars to purchase lands for the freedmen, etc, all of which were referred

The House went into the Committee of the Whole, and resumed the consideration of sundry civil expenses in the appropriation bill.

After debate, the amendment directing that six revenue cutters on the lakes shall be laid up, was agreed to, with the understanding that it be voted on by ayes and noes in the House.

The number of Rems for appropriations for public buildings in various localities, is largely increased in spite of the opposition of Washburne, of Illinois, who said there appeared to be a communication to be read from Kennedy, Superintendent of Metropolitan Police of New York It made no grave a charge that he did not feel justified in withholding it from the immediate knowledge of the House

The letter was read. It was directed to Major Richards, Superintendent of the Metropolitan Police of Washington, as follows:

SIR:—I have just been called on by Col Shaffner, President of the United States Blasting Oil Company with the request to look up five cans of nitro-glycerine which was delivered on order from a regular customer, but which order is now pronounced to be a forgery The quantity of oil in the cans is about 165 pounds, a quantity sufficient to blow up the St Nicholas Hotel, New York He fears it may have been obtained in the way it was for a foul purpose, as he latterly has many applications by unknown persons for the purchase of this article, to whom he refuses to sell, owing to their being strangers and would not explain satisfactorily the purpose for which they wanted it He informs me that although it was given out that the stone walls of Clerkenwell prison were blown down with gunpowder, the material used was nitroglycerine Now, sir, this 165 pounds has disappeared from New York, and is intended for mischief, it is more likely for use in Washington than elsewhere I give you this information to put you on your guard

JOHN F KENNEDY,
Supt. Metropolitan Police, New York

When this paper was read, Ingersoll said, let us abolish the Metropolitan Police, and see if it won't be blown up

Spaulding moved to adjourn.

Washburne moved to again go into committee to finish the bill.

The House went into committee and the last amendment was rejected, when the committee rose and the House adjourned.

The Impeachment Articles

CHICAGO, Feb 26.—The Tribune's special says the Committee upon the articles of impeachment were in session most of the day Generals Emory and Thomas were among the most important witnesses examined The Committee have virtually agreed upon five articles, there may be seven The articles charging a violation of law in creating the Department of the Atlantic were discussed, but will probably be laid aside for the time as the Committee propose to avoid all but the plainest and most unquestionable allegations, as also such as would call for the summoning of witnesses from a distance The proposition to frame an article upon certain features, as the removal of Gen. Ord and the appointment of Gen. Gillam, involving a direct purpose on the part of the President to defeat reconstruction This will probably be ruled out, because it might involve the bringing of witnesses from Cuba if the President desired it. It will probably be laid aside for the present and the Committee will proceed to the discussion in the House on Saturday and present the bill to the Senate on Monday next. The articles thus far agreed on are as follows

Article 1st—That Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, is guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors, in that he removed from office as Secretary of the Department of War, E M Stanton while the Senate was in session and without its consent

Article 2d—That said Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, contrary to the provisions of, and in violation of the act concerning the tenure of certain civil offices appointed Lorenzo Thomas as Secretary of War ad interim, the Senate then being in session, and without its consent to the same.

Article 3d—That said Andrew Johnson President of the United States, was guilty of a high crime in this, that on the 21st day of February, 1868, he conspired with Lorenzo Thomas and others unknown by the House of Representatives, by force and threats and intimidation, to prevent E M Stanton, Secretary of War, from holding his said office in violation of the Act of July 31st, 1867, defining conspiracies, and of the Act regulating the tenure of certain civil offices

Article 4th—That said Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, is guilty of high crimes in office in this, that regardless of His oath and in violation of the Constitution, he did, on the 21st day of February, 1868, appoint as Secretary of War ad interim to-wit Lorenz Thomas, without the consent of the Senate, and no vacancy existing in the office of Secretary of the War Department

Article five is not fully defined but it is supposed it will charge the President with attempting to induce officers of the army to violate the articles of war as authorized by Congress and approved by himself

Gen Emory testified that the President had spoken to him and inquired particularly as to the number of troops in command He then asked him about the power of the law requiring all orders to the army to pass through army headquarters Gen Emory in reply told him his understanding was that all orders must thus go to him

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The Herald's special says Gen Thomas has sued Stanton for false imprisonment, laying his damages at $100,000.

CHICAGO, Feb 27.—There is no report from the Committee of Impeachment The articles are not yet all drawn up

WASHINGTON Feb 27.—The counsel of Gen Thomas have decided to apply to the District Court for a writ of quo warranto for Stanton to show cause why he retains possession of the War Office No new developments to-day Gen Thomas lays his damages against Stanton at $250 000

Washington News

WASHINGTON Feb 26.—Gen L Thomas applies to the Supreme Court to-day to be compelled by mandamus to sell Talbot J Morrick and William B Cox, both Gen Bradley's assistants, and Judge Carter and Judge Underwood to sell Stanton to appear and testify with Lorenzo Thomas as Secretary of War, certain letters that the latter has in possession Judge Carter asked if the case was connected with the impeachment, and was answered in the affirmative Mr Stanton then asked a continuance till to-morrow Merrick objected to it in the interest of public interest Judge Carter was inclined to grant a continuance Merrick asked that the case be considered in the criminal court instead of chancery Judge Carter declined as he understands it an unseemly impulse Merrick and General Thomas's counsel and his Counsel interviewed him to the Marshal of the District He was fined for a prisoner and his counsel asked a writ of habeas corpus Judge Carter declined to issue it General Thomas believing he would not get it to-morrow and indicated him that if he could go home

WASHINGTON Feb 26—Press Commissioner Hartzell has resigned to take charge of a newspaper in Connecticut

WASHINGTON Feb 26—The delay for the House in not yet reporting articles of impeachment is said to be owing to the fact that the impression prevails that the President cannot be convicted by the Senate on charges of violating the Tenure of Office Act Hence the Committee to-day are engaged in framing files, with a view to secure the united party vote if possible and avoid all doubts

The majority of the Committee on Ways and Means have agreed to retain the whisky tax at $2

The President to-day sent the Senate the name of John Caldwell of Ohio, as Minister to Bolivia.

The report that the Treasury refuses to honor Stanton's requisition as Secretary of War, are unfounded Several requisitions by Stanton for various amounts have passed through the proper Bureaus to day

Justice Carter has fully discharged Gen Thomas, giving as his reason that it is well known that Thomas does not seek to evade the process of law in any regard, and will be ready to answer when called upon The grand jury convenes in the District on Monday next which is the tribunal charged with presentment of this and other like cases Under the several made to day, I think my duty is to discharge him," in discussing the case upon motion of the defence, he said General Thomas you can go home" Thomas, on leaving court was received with cheers by the crowd outside

Copperhead Bluster.

PHILADELPHIA Feb 25.—At a large Democratic meeting in the Eighth Ward, strong resolutions were passed One Col Lechler said before many days every lamp post would be converted into a gibbet for the Republicans

Southern Conventions.

RALEIGH, Feb 25.—The Convention by a strong vote has adopted the articles on suffrage To day was spent in discussing the article relating to the judiciary making three Supreme Court Judges and twelve Superior Court Judges, all elections by the people

CHARLESTON, Feb 25.—The Convention passed to third reading the entire executive article. There was considerable debate on the question whether the recognition of a Supreme Being shall be held to be a qualification for office It was decided in the affirmative

BERLIN, Feb 25.—The new treaty provides that the Germans must obtain a license to emigrate, which shall be restored when those who after taking out naturalization papers and residing in a foreign country five years, shall be released from militia service in Germany

LONDON, Feb 25.—The House of Lords has agreed to a bill renewing the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus in Ireland.

Impeachment, says the Herald, "will create as profound a sensation among all who love the Union and venerate the Constitution, as did the firing on Fort Sumter." Hear the saintly rebel! The only "sensation" which he and his kind experienced when Sumter was fired on was that of secret joy at the Confederate "victory." They experienced the same "profound sensation" again when they heard of the battle of Bull Run. Did any of them share in the patriotic feeling which was aroused throughout the country, demanding that the rebellion which had opened its guns on Fort Sumter should be stamped out? Not much The cry then was, "The war is unconstitutional," and "you can't conquer the South!" This assumption of a patriotic virtue by such a defender of the rebellion as Beriah Brown, comes just seven years too late. In every attempt of the kind which he makes, he only succeeds in writing down his own falseness and infamy.

The Union Club meeting held last evening was large and enthusiastic. It was addressed by J N Doiph and J. W. Stevens. Strong ground was taken by the speakers in favor of impeachment, and the remarks made on the subject elicited great applause. We publish elsewhere the resolutions adopted by the meeting, which are emphatic on this matter There is but one sentiment among Union men with regard to impeachment The resolutions adopted are, as a whole, excellent in their tone and character, and form a platform broad enough for all Union men to stand on.

TRANSPORTATION WANTED.—It is understood that no steamer will leave San Francisco for Portland till Thursday, when the John L. Stephens will be despatched. Half the needs of this market been consulted a steamer would have been sent several days ago. When she gets here the few hundred tons which she can take away will make no perceptible impression on the the immense accumulations of produce now on hand and awaiting transportation. There is probably not less than 5,000 to 6,000 tons of produce now in the city warehouses, to say nothing of the amounts in the hands of the smaller dealers, all of which would be sent away immediately if there were vessels here to take it. In addition to this, there are not less than 500 tons arriving each day. Every nook and corner is full and still it pours in. There soon will be no possible storage room in the city. This state of things must however continue but for a day, though it is seriously crippling the prosperity of the state. The wonder is that while there is so much freight offering, the steamer trips should be so few and far between, especially as the freight charges are certainly high enough to make the carrying business profitable. Another wonder is that while there are a dozen or two of sailing vessels idle at San Francisco, some of them do not turn this way for employment. Cargoes could be turned out at once for not less than six or eight steamships of the capacity of the Continental. It strikes most people that the present offers greater inducements for an influx than ever before existed. It is true, the pressure of freight may not continue all the time as now, but it will continue for months in excess of the transportation facilities at present offered by all the vessels visiting this port. There is certainly room for the profitable employment of others.

RECEIVED TO JOHN EVERETT.—Quite a large number of our citizens have united in tendering a compliment to Mr John Everett, the leader of the Mechanics' Brass Band. The correspondence relating to it will be found in our advertising columns. The compliment comes, really, from the leading musicians of the city who know Mr. Everett intimately and appreciate his musical talent and his long and unceasing efforts to organize a band which should be a credit to the city. The presentation has not been yet definitely arranged, but there is no doubt of performers who have already volunteered their services rendering it not difficult to make up a programme of greater variety and attractiveness than any yet attempted here. We can say that there will be lively quarrelling, etc., by both the brass and the string bands, piano solos, vocal solos, trios, quartettes, etc., by both of the bands, similar performances by volunteers from the Philharmonic Society and others, and some of the very great variety. Mr. Everett organized the Band five years ago and has given it almost constant attention ever since, and this is his first appearance for a public benefit. We predict that it will be as much a delight to him as the performances will doubtless be a treat to his auditory.

CIRCUIT COURT—UPTON, JUDGE.—Proceedings of Monday, March 2d.

—[illegible] OF THE FIRST WARD SCHOOL.—The school in the North Portland building was formally opened yesterday morning, under the direction of Mr O. S. Frambes, Ed. Prof. of the Public Schools. Mr. Perslan, at present in charge of the first Portland school will have charge of the Intermediate Department, assisted by Miss E. J. Way. The Primary Department will be under the charge of Miss Anna S. Northrup, assisted by Miss Carrie L. [illegible]. The connection of Mr. Perslan with the school will, we learn, begin till his term at the East Portland school shall have run out, the last of the present month. He has a high reputation as a teacher, and the charge of his charge will doubtless become [illegible] and popular. His assistants have already had charge of classes and have proved themselves [illegible] ful and far interested, especially as the freight charges are certainly high enough to make the carrying business profitable. Another wonder is that while there are a dozen or two of sailing vessels idle at San Francisco, some of them do not turn this way for employment. The correspondence relating to it will be found in our advertising columns. The compliment comes, really, from the leading musicians of the city who know Mr. Everett intimately and appreciate his musical talent and his long and unceasing efforts to organize a band which should be a credit to the city. The presentation has not been yet definitely arranged, but there is no doubt of performers who have already volunteered their services rendering it not difficult to make up a programme of greater variety and attractiveness than any yet attempted here. We can say that there will be lively quarrelling, etc., by both the brass and the string bands, piano solos, vocal solos, trios, quartettes, etc., by both of the bands, similar performances by volunteers from the Philharmonic Society and others, and some of the very great variety. Mr. Everett organized the Band five years ago and has given it almost constant attention ever since, and this is his first appearance for a public benefit. We predict that it will be as much a delight to him as the performances will doubtless be a treat to his auditory.

CIRCUIT COURT—UPTON, JUDGE.—Proceedings of Monday, March 2d.

—Wm. F. Burke was admitted a citizen of the United States.

—A. V. Staley vs Chauncy Ball; action to recover [illegible] of personal property, verdict of jury that [illegible] is the owner of, and is entitled to the possession of the property described in the complaint and her damages [illegible] at $125. Mitchell, Dolph & Smith for plaintiff, Frederick for defendant.

—Caleb vs Joseph Knott; [illegible] from County Court; action to recover $150 attorney's fees, motion for [illegible] dismissed at cost of the defendant with leave to either party to take depositions of witnesses on case city's. Strong for plaintiff. Stout & Read for defendant last.

—H. Tuckerberry et al vs J. T. Gorse, action on account for [illegible] rendered; verdict of the jury for plaintiff [illegible] in the sum of $60 50. Hirsch, Dolph & Smith for plaintiff, Hill & Mather for defendant.

—Sherlock & Co. vs. Simon Isaacs; action on account for [illegible] $40; jury empannelled and evidence being taken. Caples for plaintiffs, Marquam & Read for defendant.

—[illegible] OF THE FIRST WARD SCHOOL.—The school in the North Portland building was formally opened yesterday morning, under the direction of Mr O. S. Frambes, Ed. Prof. of the Public Schools. Mr. Perslan, at present in charge of the first Portland school will have charge of the Intermediate Department, assisted by Miss E. J. Way. The Primary Department will be under the charge of Miss Anna S. Northrup, assisted by Miss Carrie L. [illegible]. The connection of Mr. Perslan with the school will, we learn, begin till his term at the East Portland school shall have run out, the last of the present month. He has a high reputation as a teacher, and the charge of his charge will doubtless become [illegible] and popular. His assistants have already had charge of classes and have proved themselves [illegible] ful and far interested, especially as the freight charges are certainly high enough to make the carrying business profitable. Another wonder is that while there are a dozen or two of sailing vessels idle at San Francisco, some of them do not turn this way for employment. Cargoes could be turned out at once for not less than six or eight steamships of the capacity of the Continental. It strikes most people that the present offers greater inducements for an influx than ever before existed. It is true, the pressure of freight may not continue all the time as now, but it will continue for months in excess of the transportation facilities at present offered by all the vessels visiting this port. There is certainly room for the profitable employment of others.

RECEIVED TO JOHN EVERETT.—Quite a large number of our citizens have united in tendering a compliment to Mr John Everett, the leader of the Mechanics' Brass Band. The correspondence relating to it will be found in our advertising columns. The compliment comes, really, from the leading musicians of the city who know Mr. Everett intimately and appreciate his musical talent and his long and unceasing efforts to organize a band which should be a credit to the city. The presentation has not been yet definitely arranged, but there is no doubt of performers who have already volunteered their services rendering it not difficult to make up a programme of greater variety and attractiveness than any yet attempted here. We can say that there will be lively quarrelling, etc., by both the brass and the string bands, piano solos, vocal solos, trios, quartettes, etc., by both of the bands, similar performances by volunteers from the Philharmonic Society and others, and some of the very great variety. Mr. Everett organized the Band five years ago and has given it almost constant attention ever since, and this is his first appearance for a public benefit. We predict that it will be as much a delight to him as the performances will doubtless be a treat to his auditory.

CIRCUIT COURT.—The Victoria Colonist has a long account of the capture of a rael Finian in the [illegible] Rose. It is related that he secretly approached [illegible] of the night time, was discovered in the morning [illegible] were searching for just such characters, [illegible] toward the American shore, captured [illegible] back to the city, cut up into slices and sold to [illegible] actually sold and eaten. The Finian was a [illegible] and the story was told in evidence of the [illegible] feeling existing among the Johnnies, concerning [illegible] a Fenian Head Center.

—IN ARRIVAL.—The following is a list of the produce arrivals Monday, the 2d: Per steamer Senator from [illegible]: 24 boxes eggs, 2 kegs lard, 23 sks dried apples, 20 sacks linseed oil from Salem mills, 220 boxes apples, 2 coops chickens, 51 bbls moss beef, 1,444 qr sks flour, 8 bales woolen goods, 117 bags wheat. Per Alert from Dr. City, 2,454 qr sks flour, 427 bags wheat, 200 sks feed, 12 boxes eggs. Per Ranger from Oregon City, [illegible] Salisbury, 20 boxes apples, 50 gunnies bacon. From Marion: Taken per Fannie Troup, 25 gunnies potatoes.

—[illegible] MARQUAM, JUDGE.—The March term of [illegible] 78 cases, 3 yesterday morning, and the following were had:

C. P. Ferry, Executor, and F. Hamilton, Executrix, estate of C. M. Hamilton, vs R. P. Gile; by consent of parties [illegible] 21st inst. till the April term.

Read & Stronbridge, Administrators estate of T. J. [illegible] vs. Thomas Agee; continued for service till the [illegible] term.

[illegible] Adam K. Thomas; continued for service till the [illegible] term.

—[illegible] TO JAIL.—In the case of Simmons alias Clemmons, committed on the charge of burglary, bail was fixed at $500, and his friends were making an effort to raise that amount of cash for his liberation from jail, [illegible] in his case was not so conclusive as in the other two, there being some doubt as to his guilty. This will account for the small amount of bail fixed.

FROM THE DALLES.—Capt Wolff of the Hunt informs us that the ice still hangs at Craig's Point, three miles below the Dalles. The Idaho came down from that point [illegible] passengers, mails and express. It was thought the blockade could not remain more than a few hours longer, as he was already very rotten and apparently giving way.

—CLUB ELECTION.—The Pioneer Base Ball Club held its annual election for officers last evening, with the following result: J. W. Sutton, President; J. R. Wiley [illegible] and Treasurer; P. C. Schuyler, W. K. Without, W. V. Cook and J. R. Wiley, Directors. Joseph Buchtel, of First Nine.

—DELEGATES TO THE COUNTY CONVENTION.—The delegates to the Union County Convention from Sandy Precinct are [illegible], Hiram Barker and Isaac Street. The delegates from Willamette Precinct are, Messrs John Powell and Capt. M. Long.

—U. S. DISTRICT COURT.—In pursuance of an order of the Judge of the U. S District Court, the United States Marshal [illegible] to-day morning formally adjourned the term for [illegible] to the 1st Monday of May next. Judge Deady is in California.

DANCING SCHOOL.—Mr Frank McCann, who has recently opened a Dancing School in the hall over Randall's Music Store, will give the first of his series of soirees on [illegible] evening.

—THE WEEKLY SOCIETY.—Ladies of the "Relief Society" will meet in the basement of the Presbyterian Church to-day (Tuesday) at half past two o'clock, P. M.

—TO MARRY.—Mr. Coulson, the County Clerk, [illegible] during the month of February, fifteen marriage licenses.

—It was a cold month, you are.

THE COURTS.—We are informed that the opposition steamer Cowlitz will be ready to-day to begin her regular trips to Oregon City.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF IDAHO—BOISE CITY, I. T.—Organized March 11th 1865 (with circulation) under Act of Congress approved July 12, 1864. Authorized capital $500,000. Paid up capital $100,000. B. M. DuRell, President. C. M. Ide, Cashier. Collections of Notes and Accounts on the principal places of Idaho Territory promptly attended to. Exchange for Coin or Currency on this Bank can be purchased of Ladd & Tilton, Portland, Oregon.

SCHOOL.—A school will be given at Mr McCann's Dancing Academy, Philharmonic Hall, Wednesday evening, March 4th. The hall has been recently refitted, and no pains will be spared to make it agreeable to all. Mr Everett's Band will be in attendance.

SEEDS, BULBS AND FLOWERS.—If you want fresh, clean seeds for gardens, healthy shrubs or flowers, or shade or fruit trees, go right to Chatfield's, on First Street nearly opposite the Western Hotel. He has a great variety for sale and will sell them to you on the fairest of terms. [illegible]

OUR YOUNG FOLKS.—Attention, everybody. In order to make room for our spring stock of goods from New York, we will sell our extensive stock of clothing, regardless of cost for the next thirty days. Our object in [illegible] the cost of the goods so much as the CASH MONISH FOR THE SAME. Wm Currier & Co., 108 Front street.

A CANOE VOYAGE.—On November 25th, the canoe "Caughnawaugha," Mr F. Poole, arrived in Leith, from Grangemouth, having accomplished a voyage of nearly two thousand miles since July last. Mr Poole started in his canoe from Liverpool, and after paddling along the coast and out into the Irish Sea for several days, he touched at many points on the Lancashire, Westmoreland and Cumberland coasts, visiting the majority of the English lakes in his frail boat. He then proceeded round the coasts of Wigtonshire, Kirkcudbrightshire, and Ayrshire, occasionally landing and making a geological survey of the country, till reaching the Firth of Clyde, in which he stood for several weeks, thoroughly exploring the bays and lochs of the Firth, and some of the western islands. Returning to Glasgow, he paddled through the Firth and Clyde Canal to Grange mouth, whence he sailed to Leith. The canoe in which Mr. Poole accomplished his voyage was built for him in Canada by a tribe of Caughnawaugha Indians, and is composed entirely of one sheet of birch bark beautifully sewed and admirably molded. The canoe is very light, weighing, when empty, only 60 pounds, and measures 15 feet 6 inches long, with a breadth of beam of 3 feet 7 inches, and it [illegible] 1 foot 3 inches in depth. In this frail boat Mr Poole, as a geologist and mining engineer, voyaged for eight years among the rivers of British North America to the Rocky Mountains, across which he carried it, and paddled thereafter down the many streams arising on the west watershed of the Rocky Mountains down to the Pacific. By its means he proceeded to Queen Charlotte Island, which he explored, having been the first white man who set foot on the Island. During all his wanderings among the Islands of British Columbia he paddled no less than 15,000 miles, and in course of one of his geological surveys, he was the only surviving member of eighty six Europeans and Indians.—Scotsman.

DR. C. W. COOL,
DENTIST.

THOSE WHO DESIRE FIRST-CLASS DENTAL SERVICES might do well to give him a call. He is making a NEW AND IMPROVED VULCANITE PLATE. The nature of his improvement consists in lining the entire concave surface with fine gold. It makes the plate twice as strong and one-third times thinner than the common vulcanite plate. It also prevents the acids of the mouth from roughing the plate, and from turning it black, which is a common occurrence. One half of the common vulcanite plates turn black after being in use a short time, particularly where tobacco is used for smoking. His new style of plate admits of a very fine finish on the concave or palate surface. His office is the only place where such work can be had. The improvement is his own invention, for which he has received, December 3d, 1867, a patent from the United States Patent Office. He has been making this style of work for the last two and a half years, and has specimens of the work which can be seen at his office. This work has given satisfaction in every case.

Manufactory Established in June, 1851.
STEAM POWER, NOS. 625 AND 627 FRONT ST.
HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities. CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.
The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the envy of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of th consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.
BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.
Each package bears the signature of G. VENARD.

Vox Humana.

A night in January finds me in a room of the Hotel Feder at Genoa. The apartment had been formerly one of the gay halls of the Italian Alhambra, and although a portion of its splendor had departed, enough remained to make it a tasteful one for the still grand inhabitants of the house.

A soft light stole through the room, and I could see from the bed that the window was open, for the balcony was shaded and I could distinctly see the moonlight glancing from time to time towards the bed on which she lay. But although the light was there, the air was so still that the little gleams that came from under the lamp-shade and make the words distinct to the eyes of the gas-man. She received in a low voice in gray prose the loving for the last time I should ever hear in this world and death was certain.

A rustle in the bed and the Sister drew near to it. Gretchen leaning on the great German organist by their living. With the strength of the death struggle she clasped a beautiful book of the most unlimited size, and way up on the pillow. She sat erect, and her large dark eyes whose brightness almost shed a glare over all her pale face, rivetted upon the self possessed Sister who stood beside the couch with a wife that kind expression of inquiry upon her face. The two women looked at each other as strangers met in a meeting on a lonely heath.

"Have you ever heard," asked Gretchen in a hoarse voice

"Yes," answered the Sister calmly

"Whom?"

"Our Christ."

And I loved man," groaned the dying Gretchen. "Close your book, good woman. The prayers almost drive me mad for I only love Franz and cannot think of heaven or God or Christ or anything but him.

I always knew he was unworthy of the deep feelings I gave him, that he was selfish, ungrateful and without principle, but I loved him passionately. When we were both young he married me for he thought then that he loved me but he did not, it was my music that infatuated him.

Franz became a poet and an artist under the influence of my tone-tongue, for although I was only a humble teacher, I was a better executant and my husband drew inspiration from me, though which his genius was cast if into the tone-realm where he was a great while I, alas! remained the mere instrument.

I can feel now the thrill that would pass through me when he buried his beautiful head in the folds of my robe while listening to my own playing. The touch of the passionate caress by which he never gave me at any other time, tingle on my lips and brow still although so many years have dragged wearily over them, and on them lay the heavy snows of winters of neglect and absence.

At that touch, chords, harmonies and the divinest melodies rolled off from my fingers like fire and glowing lights. Memory in those happy days had a marvelous power. Without trouble I could recall difficult studies of Bach; and I executed them with a taste that sometimes startled me while he, my lover—no, my husband—for he was never my lover—drew music-life and material for fame from me. [illegible] the harmonies and sounds from the keys and stops of the instrument. Why should he, with his untrue nature, have had greater gifts than I while my glowing, earnest spirit lay mute within me?

"You know, Sister, how superb his voice was. He has sung at your great festivals and people said the pathos of a mortal and the glory of an angel were blended in his songs.

"He took the flat outlines of characters in operas, whose written notes lay over them as mere hieroglyphics and gave them form and shape—nay, more—life and breath. Masters crowded around him with their compositions for they needed not only his voice, but his comprehension, to make their visions clear and palpable to the public.

"Then it was that he met Selma Paz, who was—O God!—not only my rival, but his equal; she was what I should have been, loving Franz as I did.

"I tried to bear it all patiently. After vespers I used to stay during the darkening twilight in the old church alone. I strove to silence my gnawing grief by studying, at grand mental sessions, during the hot black hours when I knew they were giving passion-life, throbbing life to some music poet's creation, swaying the crowd with their voluptuous love-call, their rich full throated voices floating off upon the air like disembodied spirits, melting and pulsating together.

"Imploring chords sobbing broken tone-chains lay spread out by my hands in wild confusion on the still, solemn atmosphere of the holy place as this knowledge coursed like burning venom through me. Blessed incense from the evening consecration, faint as the memory of a good act, crept up so stealthily, shadows gathered in close as thick folds of drapery about and above the lonely organ loft. Silent as death was the place and into this cold, dark ocean of stillness I poured my hot flood of passionate harmonies and vexed questioning modulations.

"Once in a while as the waves of rich freighted sounds blending with the surrounding stillness, died off, and became one with it and my self, my fingers dropping from the keys fell with helpless weight beside me. I would hear the soft, returning footfall of some holy priest, who had been reciting his prayers or performing a pious duty at the alter.

"On these lonely evening hours memory would grow very cruel and bitter as it recalled to me the twilights that Franz and I had spent there together the first days of my love and our marriage—the time when his unfolding genius drank inspiration at my fountain. His very words would be repeated in my ears as if said by some mocking demon.

"'Play on, my beloved. Your music gives me life.'

"Let me talk, Sister. Do not check me. If I tell my grief aloud, the heavy weight may pass off and I may find peace. To whom have I ever spoken before? But those prayers of yours seemed to break the heavy bars of silence and pride.

"Then I would leave the organ loft and prostrate myself on the alter steps—not in prayer—but in rebellious remonstrance with God!

"'Why should this be?' I would ask. 'Why should I, the pure and true, serve only as an instrument of use in the hands of another for my own misery?'

"But as the light of the never-darkened lamp that hung before the altar stole down in cool, pale rays over me it seemed to recall the words of the stern Saint Paul.

"Nay but who art thou that replies against God? Shall the thing formed say to him that formed it, Hath not the potter power over the clay of the same lump to make one vessel unto honor and another unto dishonor?

"One Sunday—it was Easter—I had a grand musical display in my organ loft. A cardinal from Rome was to be present at the sacrifice, and I sent for the singers at the opera house to help me. The mass sung was the 11 Minor of Haydn, that sublime one in which the trumpet notes seem as if they should be sounded by the silver trumpets of the ancient synagogue.

Selma took the soprano solos. I forgot that she was my rival while listening to her singing. After executing the rippling passages of the Kyrie Eleison with unerring exactitude her superb voice entirely carried off by the organ or other instruments attacked the high G of the major key of the Gloria in Excelsis.

Full round and rich-colored as a bursting pomegranate, that Gloria floated off from her beautiful throat filling the whole building with its splendor. I forgot mortal love and jealousy and all the angel-rest within me.

"When the violins played the soft melody which precedes the Et in terra pax, the notes sounded as if proceeding from angels of peace and love. Franz sang the invocation with a tenderness that gave an impetus to my new born hopes, and when Selma responded the Pax hominibus my whole soul felt an uplifting as if I had been baptized in the Holy Ghost.

At the Offertory Franz sang. Sir Julius Benedict's Sanctus and Benedictus inspired him. I never had sung as I did that day. My fingers never before flew from the keyboard with such power and precision. I was conscious that my whole soul was in my hands, but I saw the tears in Selma's fingers and has well she [illegible] with emotion. At the close of the Agnus Dei I played one of Bach's organ fugues with multiplied and lively [illegible] as if to express in sound the conflicting agitation of my heart but a solo in the Kyrie for the new wife of Faith as I fancied seemed to be dawning for me.

That night Selma and Franz fled together and I never saw them again. They were united me and I was too noble and gifted to grieve for such an unworthy husband. What if they know of the passionate strength of a woman's love? My heart was and I am still as a lake waits surface but I thought only of ruin beneath and in one evil hour I became what I am and suffered.

I crammed at Breslau full six months, my work in profession of teaching but at nightfall after the day's work was over I put [illegible] Franz and then to [illegible] the most thirst. After vesper service I always found him in the spring days of love and the sad concert goal may to find help in my instrument. I studied all the fine works of various masters and my unused powers developed rapidly under the spurring influence of burning sorrow and anguish.

Before I knew it my fame spread both abroad and crowds of people came from far and near to hear the woman against whom all the [illegible] was [illegible] and to all them all. Thus I was pursued out into the world as I traveled through many countries. The music thirst grew stronger, the love of his fame was great but nothing, absorbed for one instant the ever aching, yearning, for Franz.

At last the news came to me that he and Selma were dead. Both were [illegible] on a voyage to America. Then I thought that if I could die we might all meet as in that blessed Easter Day and I [illegible] with each other for in heaven there is no marrying or giving in marriage. You know that, Sister.

This is Easter Eve," said the Sister.

"Yes but it is near dawn is it not? Open the shutters. Let me breathe the morning air for oh I am stifling," and the young woman struggled to catch the quick ebbing breath.

The Sister pushed the blinds of the nearest window aside and though the faint ray of the approaching day could hardly reach the room through the narrow space of the street, the air that poured in was fresh with the spring morning's breath but sweeter even than its freshness were the lovely sounds it carried on its warm waves. From a neighboring church came the faint but clear notes of an organ and then a solemn High Mass service was closing and the beautiful strains of Haydn's Agnus Dei in the D Minor Mass could be heard distinctly by the nurse and the dying woman.

The Sister of Charity knelt down and took Gretchen's cold hands in hers while she repeated in a low wild per the last prayers. Gretchen's head slowly sank on the pillows.

"Yes she is unnamed. He is the waiting for me! Hush! Let me [illegible] Franz!"

The music pealed out louder and louder. The angelic flight of voices in the Domine Deus pace in chased each other on the transparent glittering atmosphere made for them by the silvery notes of the trumpets. When the trumpets ceased the voices and instruments rose in full chords, and moved along in heavenly bands harmoniously together.

Shorter and more eager grew Gretchen's breath and broken words fell from her lips that told of impatient longings to reach that which her imagination presented. The Sister's prayer welled up pure and cool as a little woodland spring beside the hot sands of mortal love and yearning.

The gradually failing eyes of the dying woman gazed forward on that which was invisible to mortal sight and her spirit grew more and more restless to be released from the leaden weight of the body that was slowly detaching itself from her each life long link falling heavily one by one as rusted chains in a dungeon.

Day dawn became brighter. The dusky shadows of the room struggled at first faintly with the fast entering rays of light, and then passed off at last the pure beams of Easter morn hung over the death bed like long tapering angel's wings and all was still as and peace!

The Eastern journals chronicle the death of "James Mott, husband of Lucretia Mott. We have heard of Lucretia and her lectures for many years but who ever heard before that she was encumbered with a husband? So when the good man dies his obituary notice is the first announcement of his existence to the world at large coupled with an account of his shuffling off this mortal coil. He departed Mott was doubtless and complacent husband but under the shadow of his wife's greatness he was content to live and die as Lucretia Mott's husband. If woman's ambitions to be called Mrs. General So and so or Mrs. George Washington Potts why cannot they permit such men as the subject of this note to be called Mr. Lucretia Mott.
